BOARD OF HEALTH

Glastonbury has had a satisfactory year as regards the public health, in spite of an unusual emergency, the great flood of March and April, and a state-wide epidemic of poliomyelitis.

Communicable Diseases

The following is a list of communicable diseases reported to this office from September 1, 1935 to September 1, 1936:

Chickenpox	7
Conjunctivitis infectious	5
Diphtheria	1
Hemolytic Streptococcus	3
Measles	44
Mumps	22
Occupational Disease	1
Pneumonia, Broncho	11
Pneumonia, Lobar	5
Scarlet fever	11
Tuberculosis, Pulmonary	2
Poliomyelitis	3
Undulant fever	2
Venereal disease	7
Whooping cough	28

The number of the various common contagious diseases reported, such as chickenpox, whooping cough, mumps, etc., is probably much less than the actual number of cases. Certainly many more existed in town than were reported. This laxity in reporting cases, particularly by the parents of infected children, is regrettable since without accurate statistics, this department has no accurate way of knowing the intensity nor location of an epidemic, and consequently cannot protect the town against the spread of these diseases. It is hoped that in the future all concerned will comply with the law regarding the reporting of contagious diseases.

The outstanding disease in the above list is poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) which was contracted simultaneously by three high school girls. Due to the prompt and keen observation of Mr. John Goodrich, principal of the High School, two of these cases were suspected before they could contact other pupils in the school. This unquestionably reduced the hazard of an epidemic, but due to the fact that one case had been in school while developing the disease, the High School was closed for two weeks. No other cases developed.

In 1930, the inoculation of school children with diphtheria toxoid was initiated and up to this year about 90% of the children have been inoculated, as well as many pre-school children. No case of diphtheria had been reported since 1930 until this year, when a case of tonsillar diphtheria was contracted by an adult. No other cases have developed as a result of this case. The value of universal diphtheria inoculations is shown by the absence of this disease during a six year period. Prior to 1930, the town had from three (3) to twenty-seven (27) cases annually.

Two cases of undulant fever were again reported this year. One mild case developed during the flood when milk was unpasteurized for a few days due to failure of electrical power necessary to operate the pasteurizing plants. The other case was contracted by a farmer from his own family cow. The desirability of using only pasteurized milk is constantly shown by the occasional development of these cases of undulant fever contracted from infected raw milk.

Sanitation

Forty-one (41) sanitary inspections were made of cesspools, public toilets, public dumps, summer camps, pigstys and sewers. This is a smaller number than last year but does not include the many inspections made during the flood. The correction of all nuisances was carried out through the excellent co-operation of the affected property owners.

The town through the Board of Selectmen removed one disagreeable and obnoxious nuisance, the dump at Naubuc Avenue. Following the flood, tons of debris were dumped along the roadside at the "dike" and later covered with earth and the whole area landscaped. One area has been left available for future dumping and steps have been taken to insure careful supervision of this location. If those people who use this dump for disposal of material will cooperate, the town will be rid of the unsanitary and unsightly accumulation which previously existed at the Naubuc Avenue dike.

Last fall, a Committee appointed by the town brought in a plan for a central sewage disposal plant and sewage system to cost $250,000. They had secured preliminary engineering plans, as well as an allotment of $120,000 from the Federal Government for the building of the system. The remaining $130,000 would have been paid over a period of years by the individual property owners using the system. The town meeting called to consider this matter voted not to build the system. The need for such a system is becoming more acute annually, and some action along this line must be taken in the near future.

School Health Supervision

A physical examination was made of 491 school children during the past year. These examinations were made on all new pupils and on those who were found to have important physical defects the previous year. The school nurse and Health Officer are constantly attempting to eliminate sickness from the schools and endeavoring to interest parents in the advantages of having the physical defects of their children corrected.

The system of health certificates inaugurated a year ago is now working more smoothly. Children who are absent from school more than four days because of illness are required to bring a doctor's certificate on their return to school. The health certificates have helped to make the parents and teachers health conscious and have aided in eliminating from the schoolroom those children who ordinarily would have returned to school while still infectious.

The annual vaccinations and diphtheria toxoid clinics were carried out in April and May.

Inspections of Water, Milk and Food

The health officer has made several examinations of water supplies where there was possible danger to the public health. The State Dept. of Health makes the water analyses at its laboratories and carries out routine inspections of the local reservoirs.

Several examinations and inspections of eating places have been made during the year. A few of these places have poor methods of washing dishes and glasses and are a potential source of infection. This is particularly true of some of the taverns where it is the custom to rinse beer glasses in cold water leaving the glass unclean and a possible source of infection from contamination with germs causing colds, influenza, sore throats and "trench mouth". Three cases of "trench mouth" (Vincent's Angina) in the past year have been traced to beer taverns. Unless the proprietors of eating and drinking places voluntarily adopt a more thorough and efficient method of washing their glasses and dishes, it will be necessary for this department to take more energetic steps in enforcing the State Statutes covering the matter of washing and sterilizing food utensils.

The Flood

The great flood of the Connecticut River in March 1936, presented a major public health emergency of a degree and character never before faced by the people of Glastonbury. A comprehensive public health program was carried to a successful conclusion through the co-operative efforts of all the various groups concerned with this emergency, namely: the townspeople, town officials, State Police, military units, the American Red Cross, the American Legion, public utilities, State Dept. of Health and the local physicians.

For many years, the Connecticut River at flood stage rarely reached more than twenty-seven to twenty-eight feet. On the flat levels of valley land, residents felt fairly secure at an elevation of thirty to forty feet above mean low tide. At this altitude, several hundred people live, own stores and other buildings in Glastonbury, South Glastonbury and scattered areas between these two centers.

On March 19th, the flooded river passed its previous recorded high peak and reached thirty feet, necessitating the closing of the Buckley Bridge at East Hartford. The main highway was covered to the north and south of Glastonbury isolating the town and closing all main highways except to the east. The afternoon and evening of March 19th, the waters rose rapidly covering the flat land at Naubuc Avenue and Pratt Street in only a few hours. From that time, until the crest of the flood was reached at 37½ feet on March 21st all the energies and resources of the town were being utilized to evacuate families from the flooded areas and to care for the refugees who numbered over a thousand.

At its peak the flood had inundated three general areas and forced evacuation of 245 families. The first area in Glastonbury comprised Naubuc Avenue, Pratt, Pearl, Phelps and Grove Streets with a portion of Spring and Main Streets. The second area extended from Station No. 41 to No. 47 where some homes were deeply flooded and others were flooded only to the first floors. The third area was in South Glastonbury where the east end of Water Street, Pease Lane, and Ferry Road were inundated. In addition to these three main areas, flood waters filled the cellars on North Main Street, the Academy and High Schools, the J. B. Williams Company basement, the Pequot Spring Company and various other scattered dwellings and buildings.

The unprecedented height of the flood had reached all the towns and cities adjacent to the river north of Glastonbury, washing out sewer beds, dwellings, farms and factories, with the result that the flooded areas in this town were cesspools of polluted water. The situation on March 21st was one in which the public health was menaced by the massive pollution of large portions of the town, the unavoidable interruption of service by the public utilities and an uncertain milk and food supply. The bright spot in the emergency was the certainty of safe water as the reservoir system was untouched and water mains were intact.

Because of the danger to the public health and safety, the Health Officer with the Board of Selectmen assumed control of the town on March 21. Plans were immediately made to safeguard the health of the community.

In order to limit the pollution to the flooded areas and to prevent epidemic disease, the three main flooded areas were isolated and quarantined, police and military lines being thrown about these areas. No one was allowed in without a permit from the Health Officer, all persons being excluded during the night. Typhoid clinics were established the first day of control and all workers were required to be inoculated. These clinics were continued for three weeks, three inoculations being given to all who would take them. A total of 600 persons received three inoculations and 350 more received one or two, making a total of 2,430 inoculations. As the flood waters fell, the areas were cleaned and disinfected. The restricted or quarantined limits of the three districts were correspondingly contracted. By March 29th all quarantine was removed, permits were discontinued and the areas opened to general traffic.

In addition to closing off the flooded areas as a whole, each individual house or building flooded above the first floor or badly damaged was placarded as unfit for occupancy. These placards forbade occupancy until the houses and buildings had been cleaned, disinfected, and approved by the Health Officer, and the structure and electrical wiring examined and approved by the Building Inspector.

The next phase after general restriction of the flooded areas and the individual placarding of buildings, was the organization of a system of cleaning the polluted areas. Since this would have been impossible for individual property owners, five different groups were organized on March 21 and March 22 to handle this part of the health program.

1. W.P.A., State and Town highway crews cleaned the debris from the streets and sidewalks, with the W.P.A. and C.C.C. boys assigned to cleaning yards and fields of debris, this debris being burned or dumped at places where it was later burned.

2. The streets and sidewalks were washed by crews of firemen as rapidly as the water subsided, in order that polluted material would not be carried to other parts of the town by trucks and cars.

3. The houses were cleaned and disinfected by crews of C.C.C. boys and W.P.A. men. The floors and walls were washed and scrubbed with soap and water, the furniture either aired or destroyed.

4. Pumping crews consisting of firemen using the fire pumps and town crews using gasoline pumps, removed flood waters from the cellars.

5. Spraying crews using large gasoline spray machines followed the pumping crews and disinfected the cellars with a solution of chloride of lime.

This system of cleaning and disinfection was enthusiastically carried out and an excellent job performed by all the various crews. In spite of a dirty, filthy mess in which to work, they all did their work thoroughly. Only those who were allowed in the quarantined areas before these crews of men started work can realize the amount of damage, filth and debris that resulted from the flood.

The supervision of the health of the refugees was relatively easy, since the American Red Cross and volunteer workers had provided them with excellent places to sleep with plenty of cots, bedding and food. Drs. B. B. Earle and Edwin Griswold were given direct supervision and care of these refugees while they remained quartered at the Polish Hall, the Naubuc School and the Chapel of the First Congregational Church. Aside from one case of pneumonia, the refugees were free from illness.

The danger to the health of the community outside of the flooded areas was less serious but certain precautions were taken. The water supply of the town was not affected by the flood, but several wells were flooded and after being cleaned and pumped were disinfected with chloride of lime. Three stores partially inundated by the flood were inspected and all food stuffs found contaminated were condemned and destroyed. During the first week of the flood, a large part of the milk supply was unpasteurized due to failure of the electrical power necessary to operate the pasteurizing plants. Orders were issued to boil all milk. However, a case of mild undulant fever developed as a result of drinking milk which was not pasteurized nor boiled. As soon as electrical power was obtained and pasteurization could be carried out, the danger from contaminated milk was removed.

The following outline gives a picture of the amount and type of work performed by the Health Officer during the emergency.

A. Preventive Measures:

1. Quarantining of three flooded areas.
2. Placarding of 239 dwellings as "unfit for occupancy".
3. Typhoid clinics.

B. Administrative Measures:

1. Policing of flooded areas with formulation and operation of a "permit" system.
2. Organization and supervision of cleaning, pumping and spraying crews.
3. Organization and supervision of medical and nursing care of refugees.

C. Sanitary Measures:

1. Supervision of cleaning, pumping cellars and disinfection of 286 dwellings, 3 stores, 2 factories, 1 warehouse, 2 schools, 2 public buildings, 1 bottling works, 1 dairy, 2 garages, 2 oil companies.
2. Pumping and disinfection of six wells.
3. Inspection of 302 dwellings, stores, factories, etc.
4. Disposal of 215 dead animals deposited by the flood.

The rapid carrying out of this program to a successful termination is an achievement in which all those who played a part can be justly proud. The flood sufferers in spite of great anxiety and distress over their damaged and abandoned homes obeyed the necessary rules and regulations with excellent spirit and understanding. Herbert Clark, acting as my representative in South Glastonbury, relieved me of the detailed work in that section, performing a task that required good judgment and tact, as well as technical knowledge. Without the able services of John Carini who had general supervision of the cleaning and disinfecting crews in Glastonbury center, the Health Officer would have had greater difficulty in coping with a herculean task. Mr. L. W. VanKleeck, sanitary engineer of the State Dept. of Health was of inestimable value in assisting in inspections and supervision of disinfection throughout the areas.

To all those who aided in this great emergency and willingly shouldered untried duties and responsibilities, the Health Officer is deeply grateful. To them, as well as to this department, goes the credit of being the first flooded town in Connecticut to organize and initiate a complete plan for meeting the threat to the public health, and to be the first town to complete the rehabilitation of the damaged areas and return the residents to their homes. The record of carrying through the entire flood period without injuries or epidemic disease is very gratifying.

LEE JAY WHITTLES, M.D.,

Health Officer.

REPORT OF THE ACTIVITIES OF THE
GLASTONBURY BRANCH OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS
DURING THE FLOOD DISASTER OF MARCH, 1936

Mrs. James S. Williams, Chairman

The history of the Spring flood is fresh in the minds of all of us, and we are proud and thankful for the immediate relief work done by our Branch of the Red Cross and the help from the National Red Cross which began a day or so later.

As you will remember, according to orders from the National Headquarters in 1934, I appointed a Disaster Relief Committee of which Mr. Richard S. Williams was General Chairman. The Chairmen of the committees were:

Housing	Mr. Francis S. Knox
Food	Mr. Curtis Douglas
Clothing	Mr. Theodore Behnke
Medical Aid	Dr. L. J. Whittles
Transportation	Mr. William H. Mfno
Information	Mrs. Laura H. Gorton
Finance	Mr. Louis W. Howe

Just two years after their appointment the great Disaster came and found them ready. As soon as the river began its great rise these members named met without loss of time, and Mrs. Gorton placed her office at their disposal as Headquarters. The Town Authorities, members of the American Legion, of the Boy Scouts, of Churches, and a corps of teachers joined with our committee at the first hour that danger became apparent, and day and night were at their posts. Shelters and food were planned and the names of persons listed who would receive refugees into their homes. The question of providing boats was one of the first to be taken up, and while 20 were secured in town, 40 had to be brought from outside. To insure prompt communication a system of telephones was arranged the owners having placed their instruments at the disposal of the committee, so that each side of the flooded district could be reached. At each of these telephone stations were two Boy Scouts and on receipt of a message one would carry it to the persons sought and the other remain by the phone.

Ferries were established at the places in the roads covered by flood waters. Boats worked all day and all night rescuing imperiled persons. There being no artificial light the men were forced to use electric torches or flash lights. As many as possible were borrowed in town and $35.00 worth bought in Manchester and East Hartford and paid for by the National Red Cross.

Meanwhile the housing committee had shelters opened at the First Congregational Church, the Naubuc School, at St. James Parish House, and the Polish Hall. Scores of people came forward and offered to take refugees into their homes. All available cots and blankets and comfortables in town were collected and a great supply arrived from New Haven by truck from the National Red Cross. Food for the first meals were supplied by our townspeople but truck loads of provisions were rushed from New Haven by the National Red Cross so that special storage room had to be provided. Mr. Williams signed vouchers for nearly $3,000 worth of food and we received $600 worth of groceries as a gift from the Manager of the Atlantic and Pacific stores. Others were also generous.

Red Cross food supplies were also furnished by the National Red Cross to families who took in refugees, the expense of whose entertainment they could not afford. After the flood subsided food rations were regularly issued to more than 60 families for a space of three weeks or more. Many quilts and blankets and mattresses after being sterilized were given to needy families.

During the flood the C.C.C. men were most helpful in many ways as were executives of the W.P.A.

The cooperation of the Telephone Company should not be forgotten. Eight car batteries were connected and the telephone line was kept in operation so that we had better service than any other town in the flooded area. The Company also installed telephones in the Peabody House and in the National Headquarters at the Town Office Building, making no charge except for outside calls.

The State Police and National Guard were most cooperative also, the Coast Guard stationed a cutter in the river back of the High School for four days. The taverns were closed one week. Men of the American Legion were constantly on the job as were the town officials and the result was the most wonderful example of efficient cooperation we have ever known. The Doctors and Nurses were in constant attendance and $150.00 worth of medical supplies was furnished by the National Red Cross. After the flood 1000 persons were inoculated against typhoid and no cases appeared. Not a human life lost from any cause during the flood. With the assistance of the National Organization we opened quarters at the Town Office Building after our emergency Headquarters were no longer necessary. At the Town Office Building Mrs. Margaret Miller of the National staff was on daily duty for several weeks. All applications for help were carefully considered, and all requisitions for food and clothing signed by Mrs. Miller were filled, and allotments made to needy home owners for the repair of his property damaged by the flood, spending many thousands of dollars. Although eight rooms full of used clothing was distributed at the Peabody House yet hundreds of dollars worth of clothing was also given out on order of the National Red Cross. The National organization also sent large quantities of new material for our local production department to make garments from and a great number of garments made by our production committee, who worked continually during the flood, was also distributed. A faithful and devoted group was on duty for many weeks at the Peabody House receiving, sorting, mending, and giving out clothing, and keeping a careful record. When applicants could not be outfitted from the garments on hand, collected by a corps of Red Cross workers, new articles were purchased in town or elsewhere, all at the expense of the National organization.

Over 300 persons were completely outfitted and more than 100 others received articles of clothing and furniture. About 200 homes were evacuated and nearly 1000 people or approximately 1-6 of our population had to find shelter and food elsewhere than their homes. The chairman of the Finance Committee was able to forward to the National Headquarters as required, $1258.32 after paying such bills as the local had incurred at the beginning of the disaster. It seems a very fine contribution from a stricken area, but we received many times that amount from the National Organization. All expense incurred in rescue work, feeding, housing, clothing, medical supplies, rehabilitation were borne by the National Red Cross with the exception of the food and used clothing donated by our townspeople and those of neighboring town.

KATHERINE P. WILLIAMS,

Chairman.

ANNUAL REPORT OF TOWN PLAN COMMISSION

The Town Plan Commission held several meetings during the last fiscal year discussing the Overlook and Colman Road layout, the original Hebron Avenue lines as shown on old records, and other problems proper to come before us.

The Building Inspector's reports which were presented at each meeting show a marked increase in new single dwellings. The following is a summary of the Inspector's Annual Report for the year ending August 31st, 1936:

23 new dwellings
149 building permits	Estimated Cost	$144,566.00
122 electrical permits	Estimated Cost	7,597.35
60 plumbing permits	Estimated Cost	15,664.00

Total Estimated Cost $167,827.35

The Board of Finance was requested to appropriate $200.00 for street signs, it being the intention of the Commission to erect new metal street signs throughout the town as rapidly as funds will permit.

The Celebration was held from September 30th to October 6, 1935. The following exhibitions were held from Monday, September 30th to October 5, 1935 from two to ten P. M.

- Indian Lore—At Town Office Building
- Manuscripts—At Town Office Building
- Colonial Antiques—At Williams Memorial Building
- Agriculture—At Public Library Building
- Manufacturers—At Grange Hall
- Hobbies—At Grange Hall
- School Activities—At High School

Thirteen old homes were open for inspection and guide service was supplied.

Markers in the shape of a gambrel roof house were prepared, painted in white and lettered in black with the name of the original owner and the date of building. About one hundred and twenty houses built prior to 1800 were marked and the sites of seven ancient industries.

A pageant entitled "The Melting Pot" was prepared by Miss Maude B. Clarke with the expectation that it would be presented by the children of the town. Because of an outbreak of Infantile Paralysis, it was impossible to give this pageant.

On Saturday, October 5th an historic Parade was held, a most colorful and successful occasion witnessed by many thousands.

On Sunday, October 6th special services were held in many of our Churches during the morning and in the afternoon a dedicatory ceremony was held on the Town Green to commemorate the site of the First Meeting House. Because of inclement weather a concert by a large chorus was held in the High School Auditorium.

An Historic Booklet was prepared and published and two maps were printed also. Copies of these have been placed in the Town Records in accordance with the vote of the Annual Town Meeting, October 14, 1935.

Detail records of the reports of the many committees, records of committee meetings, publicity, many photographs of old houses, events, exhibits, a reel of moving pictures of the Parade and other matters of interest, as well as much information of a similar nature are on file with the Secretary.

ANNUAL REPORTS

SCHOOLS

—————
1935-1936

1935—REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION—1936

The Board of Education is proud of the record of our schools for the past year, under the leadership of Superintendent Francis S. Knox.

The Poliomyelitis epidemic early in the school year, and the flood during the spring were serious handicaps, but with the splendid co-operation of our Superintendent and High School Principal, and teachers, the required work for all classes was completed for the year.

The Board has adopted a change in policy in placing insurance on school property, allotting a percentage of premiums to all full time resident agents. This policy will no doubt require further changes before it will meet all requirements.

The transportation problem is one that the Board must study carefully in the near future. The lack of sidewalks and the careless driving on our Main Streets will necessitate the transporting of small children living in these areas.

The Budget of $98,000.00 adopted for the year will permit us to carry out our program as planned, but we hope to have more funds available for expansion of our school program in the near future, and we hope all tax payers will support the educational bills to be presented before the General Assembly this year.

A complete report of all the Board activities is published for your careful consideration.

TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION,
GLASTONBURY, CONNECTICUT:

I submit herewith the annual report on the condition of the public schools for the school year 1935-1936. It is fortunate that you have been so closely in touch with the schools during the past year that my report becomes, for you, merely a matter of record. You have had regular meetings at which policies have been determined and details discussed and finances controlled and studied. Each month you have had a detailed report of the budget, expenditures, and balances of the school funds. Expenditures have been made only under your approval or direction.

School property has been maintained in good condition, and two new school buses have been purchased to replace old, smaller buses which were worn out. This new equipment has proven very satisfactory and has given excellent service.

The school year has been marked by two events of unusual nature. In the fall the schools participated for one month in the town's celebration of the tercentenary of the founding of Connecticut. The record of that is included in the report of the Committee that planned that celebration. It can be summed up by saying that every school child had some part in the celebration which was marred only by an outbreak of infantile paralysis in the high school. This made it necessary to give up the production of an interesting pageant which was written for the occasion by Miss Maude B. Clark.

The other event was the spring flood which made it necessary to close all our schools for a week after the spring vacation.

The ground floors of the Academy and High schools were flooded. The damage resulting from flood, to grounds, and buildings is being repaired under a W.P.A. flood project. The only direct cost to the town has been the replacement of electric light service cables which were an immediate necessity.

There were no material changes in the number of pupils in the schools except that the high school has continued to grow. More children have left school for gainful employment than for some years past, indicating that there are more openings for people of that age than for some years past.

Another change can be noted which promises to be more detrimental to the quality of our schools unless the situation can be met. That is the fact that other towns and cities are again hiring some of our well trained and experienced teachers away from us at much more attractive salaries than we are paying. This is a bright spot on the horizon for the teacher looking for a better living and increased security, but it will inevitably weaken the quality of instruction unless we can take steps to meet such competition.

The schools of Glastonbury have profited by the depression by being able to keep teachers for several years. Classified by years of teaching in Glastonbury we now have teachers as follows:

No experience	1
Under ten years	24
10 - 19 years	17
20 - 29 years	7
30 - 39 years	1

At the same time a study of statewide salary schedules for teachers shows that Glastonbury has moved down the scale in relation to other towns and cities where salaries have been restored or raised. The situation brings sharply before us the need for increased support of schools by the State of Connecticut.

Our work in literacy and naturalization has been carried on through W.P.A. funds this year as it was the year before. A survey of the town by that group brings out the need for continued effort along adult education lines. There are reported, between the ages of 21 and 60, 446 persons who are still aliens and many of whom need help in learning the English language so that they may fully understand and appreciate our form of Government. It is evident that this work must be kept up.

The work of the School Nurse is so continuous and personal that we are apt to take it for granted, but a study of her report will show in figures how every active she has been and the increasing requests from teachers and parents for her services attest to the value of her work.

The Helping Teacher for Music instruction has done much to arouse a lively enthusiasm in the class room and assembly hall for her field of endeavor. She has been tireless in her work and has met with an enthusiastic response.

The work in Physical Education, guided by Mr. Edward F. Stuart of the high school faculty, has kept to an orderly and routine procedure. We do not attempt nor approve of developing a few star athletes, but rather attempt to interest every child in active play suited to his or her abilities and tastes, with the hope that some of it will carry over after they leave school.

The W.P.A. project at the Neipsic School, which was undertaken last fall has been only partly finished. But in spite of long and discouraging delays there seems at present good promise that it will eventually be completed and the school will at last have a respectable sanitary system.

A W.P.A. project in after-school Art education during the winter and spring showed unmistakably that our children are eager for more of that work.

It is my opinion that a Helping Teacher in Art education would be just as useful as one in Music, Physical Education or Health. I hope that you may consider that as one of the needs of the schools which still remains to be met.

Respectfully submitted,
FRANCIS S. KNOX,
Superintendent of Schools

REPORT OF THE HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

MR. F. S. KNOX, Superintendent of Schools:

I herewith submit the annual report of the Glastonbury High School for the school year ending June 19, 1936.

During the past year we have experienced more interruptions than usual in the form of an epidemic and a flood, but I feel that the high school has had a successful year in spite of these obstacles.

We have revised and added to our health education program. We found that much of the teaching of health information and habits was incidental, divided between many departments and lacking in coordination and purpose. Miss Andrews, Mr. Stuart and the high school principal drew up a course of study in health which was given to all pupils in the physical education classes. This course made use of many State Board of Health moving pictures and gave information on health habits, common diseases and their spread, prevention of accidents, and first aid. The other health instruction in the school was coordinated and made more purposeful. This program of improvement will also be carried on throughout the coming year.

The Lantern, Student Council and Radio Club purchased and assembled an amplifying system for the school for both inside and outdoor work. This has been used to supply music for parties and dances, to amplify assembly programs, for field day, and the Academy School graduation.

The attendance at the meetings between the parents, pupils, eighth grade teachers, the high school Dean of Girls and principal has been greater than in the first two years of our program for assimilating eighth grade students.

Ten pupils were employed by the N.Y.A. (National Youth Administration) during the past school year, which enabled some to stay in school who otherwise would have been forced to leave in order to help at home.

The graduation program this year had for its theme, "Changing America." The topic was chosen by the honor pupils of the graduating class and the material developed by them under the guidance of the senior English teacher, Mr. Jay Hanford, and the senior history teacher, Miss Maude Clark.

The following pupils were graduated on June 19, 1936:

Pauline Louise Adams, Helen C. Anderson, Catherine Julia Andrews, Marion E. Allen, Norma G. Argenta, Herbert N. Bagshaw, Vivian G. Bancroft, Audrey Josephine Bantle, Graham H. Bell, Elizabeth J. Bertussi, Dorothy Mae Buckley, Anna C. Buczko, George William Burney, Jr., Olga Marie Casiraghi, Josephine Jennie Dondero, Olive M. Edwards, Thomas Eugene Fauntleroy, Harold Albert Fyler, Samuel C. Clothing:

- a. good grooming.
- b. construction of garments.

On May 9th, a sectional exhibit of Home Making work was held at John Fitch High School, Windsor, and many of our girls participated. We were much pleased with the showing which the Glastonbury girls made in the various parts of the exhibit and contest.

A flower arrangement of apple blossoms, set up by the 2nd year girls, won first place.

In the clothing exhibit, two of our girls received blue ribbons for costumes made and modeled by themselves.

Glastonbury girls also received two second and one third awards for costumes and garments made in school.

The cooking team placed third in the meal planning contest.

Nine schools, both Vocational and non-Vocational, participated.

Although we feel that this past year has been quite successful, we have many hopes and plans for the coming year; hopes of improving our course of study, and plans for making the course more practical to the girls, and of bringing the girls' home and the department closer together.

THE PLAY SCHOOL

For the second year The Play School was run as a part of the Child Care and Development Unit in the Homemaking Course at Glastonbury High School. One of the Homemaking rooms was furnished and equipped by the classes for The Play School Room and a part of the Academy playground was used for their out-of-door play. The girls took charge of the school and each one had an opportunity to participate twice. Each day two girls were in charge and the rest of the class observed. In this way each girl had actual experience in helping and guiding small children.

Twelve children were enrolled for the five weeks; 6 five-year olds, 5 four-year olds and 1 three-year old. They came at 12:20, at the beginning of the afternoon session and stayed until 3:15 for four afternoons a week. Each day Miss Andrews, our school nurse, examined them to protect the group from contagious diseases.

The program was rather elastic in form for it is not the object of a play school to have formal routine and guidance, rather to give the children an opportunity to play naturally and freely. The first ten minutes were for organized games, stories and music, then followed 45 minutes for out-of-door free play. The play ground was furnished with a log-pile, tire swing, sand-box, slides, boxes and boards to be used as the children wished, to jump over, jounce on, walk up as inclines, or any number of ways. The cart, balls and bat, and any other of the indoor equipment which any child wanted to use was taken out by him and brought in again each day.

Following the out-of-door play came the rest period for 35 minutes and then the lunch of graham crackers and milk. After the lunch until time to go home each child played with the toys in the doll house, carpenter shop, or any others which he happens to fancy.

One may ask the question: "What value is the play school to the child who attends"?

"Research and experience in nursery and play schools in various parts of the country support the following points:

1. The play school provides good play facilities.
2. The play school builds up good habits in the children. Such simple needs as running, climbing, jumping, building, playing games, eating and toilet routine would involve definite habits which are not easily or safely built up in the average home.
3. The play school helps to socialize the child. Children learn to play and work with other children of the same age. Young children in groups learn a great deal from each other. One great lack in the average family and in many neighborhoods is the small number of children who are of about the same age and size.
4. The play school fits in well with the kindergarten or with the first grade.
5. The play school teaches parents as well as children.

"What does the student who participates and observes in the play school gain?"

1. An understanding of the play needs of young children.
2. A practical knowledge of training little children to form right habits.
3. Some ability and judgment in disciplining a child.
4. Some ability to help the child make social adjustments.

The girls have made the following recommendations for another year:

1. To have younger children enrolled, if possible between the ages of 2½ and 5.
2. To add some climbing apparatus to the out-of-door equipment and some additional indoor play equipment.
3. To charge a small fee for each child enrolled to be spent for the lunch.

REPORT OF RUTH B. DIEFFENBACH, HELPING TEACHER IN MUSIC

Throughout the United States National Music Week will be observed from May 3-9, 1936. This week is sponsored by a National Committee and by the Honorary Committee of Governors which is headed by President Roosevelt. The keynote of the week's activities is "Strengthen our Musical Resources." Special emphasis is laid on the development of school and community orchestras and choruses, the presentation of recitals by trained musicians as a part of a town's social program and the enlarging of the music department in the local library. Attention is called to the importance of training boys and girls to have music as an avocation, as a valuable use for leisure time both now and when they become adults.

Glastonbury schools will join with the nation in celebrating this Music Week. All the following performances are open without charge to the public and it is hoped parents of the school children and friends of the schools will be interested to attend. Glastonbury's Music Days will begin with a special assembly in the High School, May 1st and will end with the Wassuc Parent Teacher Association's monthly meeting, May 11th, at which a musical program by the children will be presented.

May 4th Buckingham will present its music hour at 3:30 p.m. The lower grades will illustrate rhythms and melodies, present several songs by famous composers and conclude by singing folk songs of many nations and dancing a minuet and a Dutch dance. The upper grades will continue the program with short sketches of composer's lives and some songs by the composers named, selections by the school orchestra which was organized by the pupils themselves, and two dances, the Virginia Reel and an Italian dance. In the latter, the performers will wear authentic costumes.

In the evening of May 4th, Taylortown will join High Street grades at 7:30 and, being the guest, will present their program first. This will consist of folk songs of nations studied in geography in the upper grades of the Taylortown School, rhythm and action songs by the lower grades and a description of the minuet, which will then be danced.

The first and second grades at the High Street School will give rhythms and songs of the American Indian whom they have studied this year. The latter part of their performance will consist of spring and summer games and activities. Grades three and four will sing, with appropriate costumes, songs of the seasons. With introductions which explain the songs to be sung the fifth and sixth grades are giving folk tunes of different nations. They will also discuss the meaning and characteristics of folk songs and dances and a selected group will dance one of the latter. One large chorus has been made from grades seven and eight, and they will sing sea songs.

The Naubuc School has selected May 5th as the afternoon for its music. At 3:30 characters from Mother Goose will be presented, also rhythm work and music with Robert Louis Stevenson verses, by the first and second grades. Grades two and three will illustrate their favorite songs and singing games. Different countries and peoples will be described in the music of grades four and five and a tableau of America's heroes will conclude this work. The whole school will join in the singing of "The Patriot's Song." The study of geography led the sixth and seventh grades to choose folk songs of many different nations. These grades will help the fourth and fifth in their tableau.

All grades at the Hubbard Street School are in the operetta, "Flowers in the Palace Garden," which has its music from the music text books used by the grades this year. This will be given May 5th at seven o'clock.

The afternoon of May 6th the Neipsic School will give its program. The lower grades will sing seasonal songs and dramatize several of the tunes they like the best. Grades five to eight will have talks describing the songs of different nations which they will sing. Special groups of pupils have been chosen for the presentation of the music and there will be several selections by the whole chorus.

May 7th in the High School auditorium the Academy School will present various types of music at 3:30. Songs about spring and nature, favorite songs of America and the home, folk songs of different nations, negro spirituals, history and presentation of rounds, illustration of orchestral instruments and several numbers by the combined chorus of the two seventh grades and three eighths will make up this program. Grade three will present creative rhythms which are a development from the use of victrola records in appreciation work this year. The pupils of Addison will have seasonal songs sung and rhythmic dances and songs presented in the lower grades in the afternoon of May 8th. The older boys and girls will sing songs from many nations. There will be short descriptive talks about the music.

Hopewell School will hold its performance that evening at 7:30. Both rooms will combine to make a varied hour, consisting of favorite songs and dances of the upper grades and dramatizations of songs learned this year and illustration of rhythmic work by the lower grades. The Wassuc School concludes Glastonbury's Music Days with its program for the parents May 11th at 7:30. The pupils will show their appreciation of their new radio by illustrating what they have learned from the music lessons on the air. They will also sing songs taught in the regular music periods.

The Federal Educational and Recreational Program Glastonbury

1935-1936

The total enrollment from November 1st to May 31st in educational classes was 323, with an average attendance of 116. There was an aggregate attendance of 3,656. The following classes were carried on: Arithmetic, Arts and Crafts, Bookkeeping, Cooking, Current Events, Dramatics, English for Aliens, First Aid, Sewing and Spelling. Classes met in the Addison, High, High Street, Naubuc and Wassuc Schools, in the Matson Hill Community Club and in private homes. The literacy classes were carried on as in former years. The general classes were formed around the wishes of the participants and were special interest groups. The literacy classes made it possible for eleven persons to receive their first naturalization papers; six to receive their second naturalization papers; and helped twelve apply for their first papers and nine apply for their second.

The recreational program was centered around the Williams Memorial Building and cooperated with the activities carried on in this center. From November 1st to May 31st there was an aggregate participation of 9,746, with an aggregate number of spectators of 6,807. The average participation per day was 52. The average number of spectators at a game was 98. Activities carried on were Badminton, Baseball, Baseball Practice, Basketball, Basketball Practice, Bowling, Ping Pong, Small Games, Soft Ball, Volley Ball and a 3 days Baseball School.

The Director attended the annual convention of the Connecticut Council of Adult Education in New Britain and made several visitations to classes of the leisure time type in Hartford, East Hartford, and Middletown, besides visiting the classes held in Glastonbury.

During the summer months the staff carried on a playground program in three centers. The childrens' activity count for the 218 morning, afternoon and evening sessions was 3,870, with 689 spectators at 17 sessions.

The adult count for the same period was 3,631 with 6,393 spectators at 38 baseball games.

Activities carried on included various kinds of games and sports, Arts and Crafts, Hikes, Dramatics, First Aid, and English for Aliens.

The federal government paid salaries to the amount of $7,003.97 to an average of five full time teachers, one part time clerk, two National Youth assistants and one Director, and also paid $220.57 for materials and supplies. The town furnished buildings, heated and lighted.

We feel that this program helped many young people of our town. In the fall we hope that many of these leisure time groups will be continued, especially the groups in literacy work and in recreation. These two types of classes especially will do much to make Glastonbury a better town to live in.

Respectfully submitted,
EMERSON C. REED,
Director of Federal Education and Recreation.
